Empowering Independence Through Technology: Insights from AT Today

Jun 6, 2025

A recent article in AT Today explores how technology can help people remain independent at home for longer, supporting both individual well-being and the wider health and care system. The article highlights a new report outlining key actions aligned with the NHS 10-Year Plan, focusing on proactive and preventative approaches.

Emil Peter, Group Chief Executive at Tunstall, contributed to the discussion, reinforcing our belief that digital innovation must be rooted in real-world outcomes, supporting people to live safely, independently, and with dignity in their own homes. At Tunstall, this person-centred approach drives everything we do.

https://attoday.co.uk/report-suggests-actions-on-using-tech-to-enable-people-to-remain-independent-at-home-for-longer/