Nov 26, 2025

Tunstall Healthcare today announces the appointment of Paul Adams as Chief Executive Officer. Paul will lead Tunstall Healthcare globally, supporting local leadership teams across all markets to navigate complex challenges and opportunities, while continuing to deliver on Tunstall's mission to empower people to live more independently through connected care and health solutions.

With over two decades of leadership experience across healthcare, technology and manufacturing, most recently as CEO at Lloyds Clinical, Paul brings deep industry expertise at a time of change and growth for the sector, combined with a passion for healthcare innovation and patient care.

Paul Adams, Group Chief Executive Officer, Tunstall Healthcare, comments: "There is no denying this is a critical time for health and care. While many factors, such as the growth of AI and an aging population, are global, the way these are playing out will impact local health and care settings – and most importantly individuals needing care – differently.

"These impacts will require new solutions and ways of thinking about technology, housing, health and care. I am delighted to be joining Tunstall Healthcare, a company with such a rich heritage combined with a progressive vision, to lead this transformative change across our markets."

Steve Francis, Executive Chairman, Tunstall Healthcare, added: "The connected care landscape is changing at pace, creating new opportunities for innovation. Paul brings the ideal blend of experience across business-to-business and consumer-facing markets, as well as recent experience of digital transformation in a patient-centred homecare environment.

"His appointment as Group CEO strengthens our global leadership team and aligns with our aspirations for the future of Tunstall; a global family of businesses united by the common goal of improving quality of life through innovative and customer-focused connected care."

Prior to Paul's role as CEO at Lloyds Clinical, leading the digitisation of care journeys for up to 100,000 patients, Paul held Chief Executive roles at medical aesthetics and dentistry business DD Group. He has also served as CEO of DD Glory Global Solutions, Redeem, and Talaris (De La Rue), each time combining strategic vision with a deep commitment to improving the lives of customers and patients.
